2 THEOLOGY AND PRACTICE OF MINISTERIAL ORDINATION

4 Introduction

6 Seventh-day Adventists believe that the gospel commission is addressed to all 7 followers of Jesus Christ. As an expression of discipleship and engagement in the 8 gospel commission men and women have held important leadership roles in the life of 9 the Seventh-day Adventist Church at all levels of denominational structure. Since the 10 late 1960s much attention has been focused on the role of women in leadership 11 positions requiring ordination. Several General Conference-appointed commissions<sup>1</sup> as 12 well as individual authors have studied this question from the standpoint of theology, 13 ecclesiology and mission.

15 The General Conference Executive Committee voted in 1973 that continued 16 study be given to the "theological soundness of the election of women to local church 17 offices which require ordination...and that in areas receptive to such action, there be 18 continued recognition of the appropriateness of appointing women to pastoral-19 evangelistic work..."<sup>2</sup> The 1974 Annual Council reaffirmed sections of the 1973 action 20 and added its opinion that "...in the interest of world unity of the church, no move be 21 made in the direction of ordaining women to the gospel ministry."<sup>3</sup>

23 General Conference Sessions have also expressed decisions regarding the role of 24 women in church work. The 1985 Session urged that "'affirmative action' for the 25 involvement of women in the work of the church be a priority...and to request leaders 26 to use their executive influence to open to women all aspects of ministry in the church 27 that do not require ordination."<sup>4</sup>

28
29 The 1990 Session, upon recommendation of the 1989 Annual Council, accepted a 30 report and recommendations from the Role of Women Commission. In its report the 31 Commission stated that it "does not have a consensus as to whether or not the 32 Scriptures and the writings of Ellen G. White explicitly advocate or deny the ordination

1 of women to pastoral ministry... Further in view of the wide spread lack of support for 2 the ordination of women to the gospel ministry in the world church and in view of the 3 possible risk of disunity, dissension and diversion from the mission of the church, we 4 do not approve ordination of women to the gospel ministry."<sup>5</sup> 5

6 The 1995 Session denied a request from the North American Division that each 7 division might be given "the right to authorize the ordination of individuals within its 8 territory in harmony with established policies. In addition, where circumstances do not 9 render it inadvisable, a division may authorize the ordination of qualified individuals 10 without regard to gender."<sup>6</sup>
11

12 During the 2010 General Conference Session a delegate requested an official 13 church study of ordination. In response to this request General Conference 14 administration informed the Session of its commitment "to establishing a process to 15 review the subject of ordination and will report back to Annual Council during this 16 quinquennium."<sup>7</sup>

18 Consequently the General Conference Executive Committee appointed a 19 Theology of Ordination Study Committee. Committee membership included more than 20 100 persons of both genders serving the Church as theologians, pastors, administrators
21 and laypersons. As in previous commissions, the Theology of Ordination Study
22 Committee did not arrive at a consensus regarding the Bible's position or Ellen G
23 White's counsel on the matter of whether or not ministerial ordination should be gender 24 inclusive. Diverse interpretations of Bible passages give rise to firm convictions in favor 25 of or in opposition to the ordination of women to gospel ministry.
26

27 However the commission did reach a high degree of accord concerning a biblical 28 theology of ordination.<sup>8</sup> This statement summarizes several important aspects of 29 ordination as practiced in the early Church and recorded in the New Testament. Two 30 foundational concepts in this Statement are: 1) that "Seventh-day Adventists
31 understand ordination, in a biblical sense, as the action of the Church in publicly 32 recognizing those whom the Lord has called and equipped for local and global Church 33 ministry", and 2) that "While ordination contributes to Church order, it neither conveys

1 special qualities to the person nor introduces a kingly hierarchy within the faith
2 community.”

4 The proceedings of the Theology of Ordination Study Committee and division-
5 appointed Biblical Research Committees provided opportunity for a global 6 conversation in the Church regarding its understanding and practice of ordination. The 7 Committee’s report was presented to the General Conference Executive Committee at 8 the 2014 Annual Council. This report included theological and hermeneutical rationales
9 for conclusions on both sides of the question. The Committee did not make a 10 recommendation concerning the practice of ordination in the Seventh-day Adventist 11 Church.

13 Differing interpretations of the Bible on this matter and conscientious convictions
14 based on those interpretations may be found in virtually all areas of the world. As a 15 result, the question becomes one of how Church members will live in harmony and 16 unity while acknowledging the presence of differing views on a variety of issues.

18 Recognizing the importance of this question with respect to understanding the 19 Bible, the multinational and multicultural nature of the Church and its mission, and the 20 biblical example<sup>9</sup> of addressing differences that do not directly involve fundamental 21 beliefs, the General Conference Executive Committee chose to call again for guidance 22 from the global church. “I have been shown that no man’s judgment should be 23 surrendered to the judgment of any one man. But when the judgment of the General
24 Conference, which is the highest authority that God has upon the earth, is exercised, 25 private independence and private judgment must not be maintained, but be 26 surrendered.”<sup>10</sup>

1           Whereas various groups appointed by the General Conference and its divisions
2 have carefully studied the Bible and Ellen G White writings with respect to the 3 ordination of women and have not arrived at consensus as to whether ministerial 4 ordination for women is unilaterally affirmed or denied, and;
5

6           Whereas the Seventh-day Adventist Church affirms that “God has ordained that 7 the representatives of His Church from all parts of the earth, when assembled in a 8 General Conference Session, shall have authority”<sup>11</sup>,
9

10           Therefore, the General Conference Executive Committee requests delegates in 11 their sacred responsibility to God at the 2015 General Conference Session to respond to 12 the following question:

14           After your thorough study of the Bible, the writings of Ellen G White, and the 15 reports of the study commissions on ordination, and;

17           After your careful consideration of what is best for the Church and the 18 fulfillment of its mission,

20           Is it acceptable for division executive committees, as they may deem it 21 appropriate in their territories, to make provision for the ordination of women to the 22 gospel ministry? Yes or No.
